Crisis is the state of the world and of our lives. The hope for (political) change seems baseless. And yet, whatever may come, we are rich in every thing.

Some of what we are rich of is part of the problem and the cause for crisis: The craving for goods and values for instance. Some richness we possess could be part of the solution though: empathy for instance. Reason. Care and Courage.

Yes, we're rich. Rich in feelings. The body is rich in its capacity to recover from pain and fatigue. The mind is rich in imagining how things could be different. We are even rich in our chutzpah to look into the mirror and accept, that that's us.

We are rich in seeing our hand scribble lines or words on paper, leaving traces to the future. Rich in reaching back to the arts of the past to see our collective origins. Rich in imagery that boldly show what is to come.

We are rich enough to do the things that should be done, as well as those that should not. For better or worse, we are rich in all things.
Let's choose better.
